FROM POINTS AROUND.

[REPORTED SPECIALLY FOR THE STAR.]

HAMILTON.—The heaviest rain for several months fell last night.

Jacob Rupp, the butcher, Saturday, bought a hog that weighed 380 pounds.

It was raised in Butler county.

The funeral of May, aged seven years, daughter of Bartin James, Esq., took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, First ward.

The Board of County Commissioners held a session Saturday. Bills to the amount of $448.80 were passed.

There were two fatal cases of small-pox in the city Saturday.

The Daniel Boone Combination is billed for this week at the Opera-house.

The citizens' hall, in Beckett's Hall to-night, is for the benefit of the Police force.

CYNTHIANA, KY.—James Gibbons and Miss Kate Jones, both of this town, were married on Saturday at Paris.

Professor Thomas Kelly gave an exhibition of magic, music and ventriloquism at Hensaker Hall on Friday night. The attendance was large.

The price of coal has fallen to 18 cents per bushel.

Professor Currier's celebrated String Band, of Cincinnati, has been engaged by the managers of the "First Annual Ball" of the A. O. H., to be given in the A. O. H. hall on the 25th inst.

In the case of the Cynthiana and Mt. Sterling Coal Road Company against Smith & Cox, in the Circuit Court, Judge Boyd gave his decision in favor of the plaintiffs.

FRANKLIN, O.—Wm. Wright, one of our oldest citizens, died after a lingering illness, on Thursday, and was buried on Saturday, the 13th, with Masonic honors. Uncle Billy has been many years in the drug business here, and by close application to business accumulated a handsome estate.

Mrs. Dr. Otto Evans, Jr., who has been seriously ill for several weeks, is not expected to live from day to day.

The hydraulic dam will soon be finished and the hearts of the employees of the mills made glad.

Hay shipping has commenced.

A large quantity of corn has been and is being shipped from this point.

The Christian Chapel was decorated on the 6th.

Rev. M. V. Crouse was ordained and installed pastor of the Presbyterian Church last week.

CALIFORNIA, O.—Rev. Mr. Davis preached another good sermon at the M. E. Church last night. His congregations are increasing rapidly. We are informed by Mr. Davis that a protracted meeting will be held at the M. E. Church in a few weeks.

We are glad to learn, through the special news column of the Star, that our neighboring village, Curry Grove, is in a highly prosperous condition. This village, at present, is a pleasant little village used to be our old stamping ground.

There was no baptizing yesterday; the ordinance was performed in the city. Many of our people were disappointed.

Persons desiring affidavits sworn to, or deeds, mortgages and leases acknowledged, can call on W. H. Mathews, Esq., Notary Public.

Yesterday, Miss Emma Biles was elected Organist of the California M. E. Sabbath-school. Miss Ella Vail was appointed Librarian; Miss Carrie Lowe, resigned.

The coming winter is likely to be a dull one for our village, financially and socially.

LUDLOW, KY.—The great checker tournament that has infogged the minds of many of our citizens, young and old, for the last three weeks, was decided last evening, the following named gentlemen being the victors: Prof. George Smith, first; Mark Nolan, second; M. R. Gravenor, third; The club is in a flourishing condition, and will have another contest, of which we propose to speak more fully.

And now the work goes bravely on. The last little shaking up we gave our timid politicians has had the desired effect, as our summary of the situation will show. The following named gentlemen are prominent spokesmen of available candidates for Council: In the First ward—Jas. Thistlethwaite, Dwight Benton and C. W. Tupman; Second ward—Squire Wessner, John H. Berkenkamp and Dan. Miller; Third ward—C. H. Jenkins, S. A. Hagerly and M. Grimsman; Fourth ward—A. A. Williams, Frank Milward, Wm. Orndorff and J. H. Grimsman; the present incumbent, John Grace, will make the race, and a host of others to hear from. For City Treasurer—S. J. Hedges; no opposition. Assessor and Collector—J. E. Gravenor; as yet no opposition. Thus far have we made the most diligent inquiry as to the chances of outgoing members being re-elected, but on all sides the citizens seem to be heartily dissatisfied with the present Council, or at least that portion of it whose time will shortly expire.

LEXINGTON, KY.—The Richmond Register speaks in glowing terms of our Judge Beckner, who was holding a term of the Common Pleas Court there last week.

The phraseology, "reigning belle," "fairest beauty," "Silkaway's" most accomplished daughter, are getting so common that young ladies of true merit dislike that kind of synecdoche in our local papers.

Major Fred Rowland, Jailer of Madison county, who shot himself in the head while attempting suicide, died on Friday from the effects of the wound.

Among the many interesting weddings lately was that of Dr. Joseph Bryan, of this city, and Miss Rose Wright, of Cook county, Illinois. The ceremony took place last Tuesday.

Among the social clubs organized for winter amusement is that of the Society of Spotted Men, under the presidency of Mr. Ernest Brennan. Its members claim to be not only select, but elect also.

It is admitted by leading politicians in this city that long continuance in office would spoil a good man. Let the friends of the City Council ("if they have any") take heed.

Scarlet and typhoid fevers and whooping-cough are prevailing in the city, but not of a malignant kind.

The number of new buildings erected and of old ones remodelled during the past month indicates renewed prosperity. The Improvement Committee have also kept pace in keeping the streets and alleys in good condition.

COVINGTON.—At St. Mary's Cathedral yesterday, Brothers Thomas S. Major, of Hamilton, Ohio, and Adolph Enbels were consecrated to the office of the priesthood. Right Rev. Bishop Dwyer, celebrated High Mass, and Father McMillan officiated as Arch Priest.

After the consecration of the priests a sermon was preached by Deacon Welsh. The Lounger, published in Cincinnati and edited principally by talented men of this city, made its first appearance yesterday. It is printed on lined paper and reflects much credit upon those who, we hope, will make it a success. Its columns are spicy and contain some very interesting sketches and anecdotes of modern history. We learn that it will appear every Sunday morning.

The usual number of drunken rowdies around a Scott street, between Fourth and Fifth, Sunday. The police do not seem to take any notice of that part of town, which is well known among the "boys."

Rev. J. S. Chadwick, former pastor of the Greenup-street M. E. Church, now stationed at Louisville, delivered a sermon at his old post yesterday.

NEWPORT.—The Court Marshal, for the trial of Captain Marotte, is still in session, and the evidence is still coming in.

The Young Men's Society of St. Stephen's Church celebrated its anniversary yesterday.

The average attendance at the public night schools last week was males, 231; females, 62; total, 293.

Entertainment at Turner's Hall, to-night, consisting of a pantomime performance, turning, etc.

A daughter of Mr. Hennmans, accompanied by some other young lady, thinking to have a little fun, on Sunday, jumped into a wagon in front of Butcher & Wiedemann's brewery. The horse suddenly started, upset the wagon, and spilled our young adventuresses into the street.

Henry Schneider, son of Adam Schneider, attempted suicide on Saturday, at Evergreen cemetery, two miles from the city. The weapon used by him was a Smith & Wesson revolver. He fired but one shot, the ball taking effect in his left breast. He was found by the sexton, and conveyed to his home on Monmouth street, near Ringgold, where the physicians probed the wound and found it not a serious one. Although the ball has not been extruded, Mr. Schneider is in a fair way towards recovery.

Locomotive No. 9 jumped the track last evening and is now laid up for repairs.

Wm. Hartley, a fugitive from justice, was yesterday captured by Deputy Sheriff Hutchinson and placed in jail until a requisition from the Governor of Ohio can be obtained.

The heavy rains of Saturday night did a great deal of damage to the new streets which are under way in Bellevue, especially Taylor avenue. The water swept down there in torrents, and cut out gutters and curbstones for over three hundred feet, making a hole four or five feet deep on either side of the street. The loss to the contractors, Messrs. Hahn and Trapp, will be very heavy. Had the weather kept good, this street would have been finished in two or three days.

Late Foreign News.

HOMEWARD BOUND.

QUEENSTOWN, Nov. 15.—Cardinal McCloskey sailed for New York yesterday. He received an ovation in Queenstown, and was presented by the clergy and laity with an address, to which he replied. Bands accompanied the steamer seaward, playing American and Irish airs, while enthusiastic thousands watched the Cardinal's departure.

HARD TIMES AND COLD WEATHER.

TORONTO, Nov. 15.—The Sun says there are over fourteen hundred houses to let in the city at present.

A terrible wind and snow storm commenced early this morning. Snow fell to the depth of over a foot. Reports from Western Canada show that the storm has been general and winter has probably set in. During the gale the main school, Olive Branch, from Oswego, went ashore on the island and was partially dismantled. Another schooner, name unknown, is also reported ashore just outside of the harbor.

HALIFAX, Nov. 15.—The ship Calcutta, from Quebec for Liverpool, was wrecked on Grosse Ile on Sunday last. Twenty-two persons were drowned and fifty passengers were drowned. The Captain, three men and a boy were saved.

A ROMANCE OF THE RAIL.

A Young Woman who Wanted a Seat for her Lover Changes her Mind.

[From the Salt Lake Herald.]

They came into the car at a wayside station together. She was in the lead—a position she is not likely to surrender as long as they travel together. A tall brunette, with a sharp face, piercing black eyes, hair black as a raven's, wearing a long aquiline nose, with a mole on the side of it, a mouth the curve of which betokened determination and force. She had passed the shady side of the teens and had climbed to the apex of a quarter of a century. He was a guileless youth over whose low-colored head some eighteen summers had passed, an innocent hobnobber, just released from his mother's apron strings. On him she cast loving glances, and his face, suffused in blushes, was turned with a timid, appealing look to her.

The car was crowded, and eligible seats not easily obtainable. About the middle of the car a sedate traveler occupied a seat by himself. Thinking the irrepressible lady pressed herself. The sedate traveler rose, and with much courtesy invited her to take a seat next to the window, and when she was seated he calmly ensconced himself upon the vacant half of the chair. By this time the young man, whose hand he had come up, placed his own hand on the back of the chair, looked appealingly on the face of his protectress, and timidly around the car. He was evidently embarrassed, and did not know what to do with himself. The sharp-nosed brunette eyed the sedate traveler by her side with a chary gaze that almost amounted to malignity.

But the traveler seemed all unconscious of the scrutiny to which he was subjected, and looked away over the fields through an opposite window.

The brunette could no longer endure to see her callow beau standing forlorn, and thus she addressed the sedate traveler, whose eyes were wandering far away, and whose thoughts were with the dear ones at home:

"I say, stranger—"

"Well, say on," responded the sedate traveler.

"Well, what have you got to show me?" said the sedate man.

"Stranger, I want you to know that this young gentleman standing up there is my lover."

"Oh, I'm glad to hear it. How long have you had him? Take care of him, I suppose."

"You just look here, stranger; this young man is my lover, and I'm bound to see that nobody shall impose on him. You hear me? Now if you had any manners you'd just get right up and let him have a seat by me."

"Oh, I am very happy in your society. You can not imagine how much pleasure it has given me to turn up a seat beside you, and sit through the ride. Besides, I always took a special delight in being near charming ladies like yourself," replied the sedate traveler.

"But, sir, he is my lover, sir, my beau—do you understand?"

"Is that so? Who would have thought it? And does his mother place him under your protection when he goes abroad?"

"Now, you look here, stranger, me and that young man expects to be engaged, and we've been keeping company together, and me and him wants to have a talk together, and you are real mean if you don't give him a seat by me, so that we can talk; that's what I think."

The imperturbable traveler straightened up, then leaned over in the direction of the sharp-faced brunette, smiled most benignly and lovingly on her, and thus spoke:

"Charming lady, I would be most happy to accommodate you, but you see I'm a pilgrim and a stranger, wayward and weary, and a long way from home. Besides, my heart is just now beating a tattoo of ecstatic satisfaction because of your charming presence. Being a bachelor, and so near one so lovely and engaging, how can I go to the pleasure of a lady who has dreams in my time—bright dreams—as I have wandered through this great big world, of some time meeting one to whom I could reveal all this sad heart of mine would find no longer conceal. You are the impersonation of my dreams, and now I have a dream in your lovely side? Say, has no bird sung in your heart? I saw you come as a star rises above the horizon, and the light of your eyes has illumined my soul. Then say, beautiful stranger, will you drive me hence?"

The sedate traveler ceased to speak.

The fire had gone down in the brunette's eyes, the severe expression had vanished from her face, her stern lips had relaxed their rigidity and parted just enough to reveal the ivory structure within, and in a tone that was soft and low she asked:

"Did you say you was a bachelor?"

"Aye, beautiful stranger, that's my fortunate station."

Then the brunette turned her eyes softly upon her "feller," who stood twitching his fingers and gazing around in an abashed, timid sort of way, and thus she addressed him:

"Fom, I guess you'd better git another seat, while I speak with this gentleman."

Extraordinary Discovery.

Says the Lincoln (Col.) News: While prospecting for lodes in the southwest corner of Burrows' Park, recently, Mr. Foote accidentally discovered the entrance to a great cave in Ida mountain, near the southwest corner of the park. Passing along a dark passage for about eighty feet, he reached a chamber 18x20 feet in size, and several feet high, the walls of which are covered with stalactites of varied styles of beauty, while the dark granite floor is checkered with veins of white marble, giving an appearance which recalls the floor of the temple of Solomon. In the rear of this room is another or inner chamber, access to which is obtained through a small, low entrance, but which is "grandeur that defies decay," and "beauty which the course of time cannot erode."

The roof being draped with stalactites similar to, but more magnificent than those that adorn the first chamber, and the floor is covered with brilliant stalactites, while the side walls show a large body of glittering mineral in a lode which crops out on both sides. A large cold spring carved in natural gushes from the rock and flows away through the dark and as yet unexplored recesses of this wonderful cavern, but the sound or roar of a waterfall in the distance indicates the course of this little stream is not altogether smooth. But there is yet so much of the unknown made in a small chamber which opens into the one first described, a discovery which possesses deep interest for the people of Colorado. It was a human skeleton found on the granite floor, and lying near it was a gun and a large knife, and a small box containing a few articles of clothing. The skeleton was found on the wall thus as follows: "Freeman, 1897." The supposition is that Freeman deserted or strayed from Pike's exploring party in 1897, and in endeavoring to reach the Pacific, perished here. The results of further explorations in this subterranean section will be looked for with interest.

Mr. Boncicelli on the Life-Insurance Man.

We are indebted to Mr. Buocicelli for the last and best anecdote about the "life-insurance man." In alluding to certain comments on the originality of his plays, he says: "Another reproach is that I have described the field of legitimate comedy (to which I contributed such works as 'London Assurance' and 'Old Heads and Young Hearts') to cultivate a low drama, as the 'Colleen Bawn' and 'Arra-na-Pogue'; that I owed it to my fame, to maintain the standard of my reputation, and write to the taste of the times. I don't care a button for prosperity, nor do I care to amuse the vulgar. Posterity is a bad audience. It reminds me of what an old Californian replied when a life-insurance company was first introduced into San Francisco, and he was asked to support it: 'Well,' said he, 'I've no opinion of a speculation where a man has got to die to realize.' So it will be with you for posterity."

When the earthquake occurred on Monday night, there was a political caucus in session in one of the rooms of the Court-house, and it is said the whole crowd instantly dropped on their knees and made a shout of prayer for the future. It takes an hour to move some people, and if we could only get the Court-house Ring cleaned out, we would be willing to corner on a volcano. [Abbeyville (S. C.) Medium.]

This olive branch to the Ohio Democrats is held out by the Buffalo Courier: "It is too early yet to notice the Democratic standard-bearer of 1876. We have no doubt, however, that the party will seek to call its best and steepest man to the front. Whether Governor Tilden or some other Democratic leader shall be that man, time will disclose. But this, at least, seems certain, that the Democracy of New York and Ohio will not be separated by petty jealousies, and that the consciousness of a common cause, the love of common victory, and the danger of a common ruin, will thoroughly unite them. 'United we stand, divided we fall.'"

The Hampshire Independent contains an interesting account of the discovery in the Hamble river, near Botley, of a Danish war galley burned and sunk at the time of the Danish invasion of England in the year 870. A tradition has long existed that certain piles in the river were part of an old wreck, but nothing was done to verify this tradition until last year. The result of the research was that the shape of a vessel was traced, and the piles found attached to the timbers in three thicknesses, each planned to a level and bent to the shape of the ship. The length of the vessel was found to be 180 feet. A quantity of cement was embedded between the keel and the hull, and the keel was covered with moss. The timber appeared to be oak, but it resembled coal, and was exremely hard, but sound; and even saw-marks were distinguishable, the instruments used being of much thicker make than those of modern manufacture.

A Canadian journal makes the remarkable suggestion that the ground in which Gulliver's body is to be buried be covered with a layer of four feet, because the new grave will be made directly over that of Gulliver, who was a "good Catholic."
